

Ana Maria Martinez is an Environmental Engineer with 13 years of practice and an on-going master's degree in water and waste management. Her main experience is in Environmental Management, Environmental Impact Assessments and community leadership in South America as well as an important level of experience and knowledge in REDD projects under the Australian Clean Energy Regulation in compliance under the ERF. At the European level, Ana Maria has participated researching for the application of water footprint methodologies in Germany. Currently Ana Maria collaborates with the Greek Non-Governmental Organisation Mediterranean SOS Network in cooperation with other competent EU organisations for the implementation of initiatives under European Funds such as Horizon 2020 and calls.